

Most business executives are aware of riding an economic cycle. They wish to buy assets at low prices and expand their business at cheaper costs shortly after a trough. Meanwhile, they all wish to sell their assets, their business and their shares at the peak of a cycle. Unfortunately these business executives are always disappointed at missing the best timings. When the stock market crashes, they realize recession is already there. When asset prices rise, they find it costly to expand their business.

This article aims to discuss some better corporate strategies to deal with economic cycles. It also identifies indicators that help business executives to mirror professional economists in predicting upcoming peaks and troughs.

大多數企業管理者均意識到經濟週期，希望以低廉的價格購買資產，並在低谷過後不久以較低的價格擴展業務。與此同時，他們均希望在經濟週期的高峰時出售其資產、業務或股票。可惜，他們總是因錯失最佳時機而感到遺憾。股市崩潰時，他們知道經濟衰退已無可扭轉；資產價格上升時，他們卻認為擴展業務成本高昂。

本文旨在討論如何以更佳的企業策略應對經濟週期，亦列出有助企業管理者乃至專業經濟師，預測未來高峰和低谷的各項指標。